My earliest memory of Bob was back in mid to late '70's. Two youngsters wanted to go on a date but had to have a chaperone. I don't know if Bob was selected, or if he chose to do it himself but he and my oldest sister Denise were our chaperones for the night. But ever since then, he always called me "kid". But the one thing I'll never forget is his laugh. And that will always put a smile on my face. I'm thankful and grateful for having him in my life.

I remember when I was about 12 years old and Bob was about 15. We were camping with the family along a river. Suddenly we heard screams from a young girl. My Brother and I ran to the sound. To our surprise a young girl was flailing in the raging river and being swept downstream. Without hesitation my brave older brother Bob dove into the water without fear of losing his own life and rescued the girl. Saving her from certain death. Bob was hailed as a hero by everyone in the campground and I had a brother that I could brag about and try to emulate in my future. Rest in peace brother, your work here on earth is done. Love you always. Wayne
